

run Pins thro' the Bodies of Flies, to pull their Wings, and to hurt those Children were lefs than himself, and to make a of the Poor and Miserable. One Day he whipt for telling a Lie. His Mamma told that Lying was beneath a little Gentlen and was to mean a Sin, that none but Thi should be thought bad enough to be guilty o She then told him that Master Joe was a be Child than he, and if he did not grow bet she should be asham'd of him ; he would m her Heart ach, and she would not love h The naughty Boy, vexed to find himself done by a Child younger and not so tall as h self, resolved to fight him ; but the first T he had an Opportunity, going to take him the Hair, the good Boy's Companions, w all loved him, stept in between them, they took his part, told his Mistrels and Mamma and he was sent hungry and supperless to B and had been whipt again too, if Master J who was all Good-nature, had not gone ho with him, and begged his Pappa and Mamma to forgive him. This had such an Effect the poor crying hungry Child, that overco with Joe's Goodness, he forgot his Anger, could not help thinking him a better Boy th himself ; he began to love him, and chain with his Sweetness, soon became like him A 4 th